SC: No double standard on witnesses

By Phoebe Ramos

WHAT DO WE KNOW?

MANILA (Philippine Daily Inquirer) — The Supreme Court (SC) has ruled that the double standard applied to witnesses in the case of the late President Ferdinand Marcos is unconstitutional. The court, in a 12-1 decision, held that the law requiring witnesses to be sworn to tell the truth applies to all witnesses, regardless of their status or the case they are testifying in.

The case, known as People v. Marcos, involved the prosecution of the late president for various crimes, including plunder and graft. The defense argued that the witnesses who testified against Marcos should be held to a higher standard than those who testified in his favor. The court rejected this argument, stating that the law is the same for all witnesses.

The court's decision is a significant victory for the prosecution, as it allows them to proceed with their case against Marcos. It also sends a strong message that no one is above the law, even if they are a former president.

House vote on P125 daily wage hike seen in May

By [Author Name]

MANILA (Philippine Daily Inquirer) — A vote on a proposed P125 daily wage hike for minimum wage earners is expected to take place in the House of Representatives in May. The bill, known as the Minimum Wage Law, was introduced by a coalition of lawmakers and is currently being debated in the House.

The proposed wage hike is a significant increase for many low-income workers, particularly in the informal sector. Supporters of the bill argue that it is necessary to protect the rights of workers and to ensure a fair standard of living. Opponents, however, claim that the hike will increase the cost of goods and services, leading to inflation.

The final decision on the bill will be made by the House, and it will then be sent to the Senate for approval. If both chambers pass the bill, it will become law.

Figure 1 consists of two histograms, (a) and (b), showing the distribution of the number of children per woman. Histogram (a) is for the 1970s (N=10,000) and histogram (b) is for the 1980s (N=10,000). Both histograms have an x-axis labeled 'Number of children' ranging from 0 to 10 and a y-axis labeled 'Frequency' ranging from 0 to 100. The distributions are roughly bell-shaped, centered around 2-3 children. In the 1970s, the peak frequency is around 100 for 2 children. In the 1980s, the peak frequency is around 100 for 3 children.

Guimaras spill victims to pursue class suit

By Marissa S. de Guzman
Manila — A group of victims of the 1991 oil tanker spill in Guimaras, Iloilo, is planning to file a class action suit against the Philippine National Oil Company (PNOC) and the government. The group, known as the Guimaras Oil Spill Victims' Association (GOSA), says it has gathered enough signatures to support the suit. The victims claim that the spill caused them physical and psychological damage, and that the government and PNOC failed to provide adequate compensation and medical assistance. The suit seeks damages for the victims and their families, as well as for the cleanup and rehabilitation of the affected area.

Gulf between US and increasingly hostile Afghan leader Karzai widens

President Karzai (right) and other Afghan leaders in a meeting in Kabul.

WASHINGTON, March 14 (AP) — The United States and Afghanistan's leader, President Hamid Karzai, are growing more distant as Karzai's government becomes more hostile to the U.S. military presence in the country.

Karzai's government has accused the U.S. of human rights abuses and has threatened to expel American troops. The U.S. has responded by saying it will continue its mission to fight terrorism and stabilize the country.

The growing rift between the two nations has raised concerns about the future of the U.S. military presence in Afghanistan. Some officials say the U.S. may have to withdraw its troops if the situation does not improve.

Despite the tensions, both sides say they are committed to finding a way to resolve the conflict. The U.S. has offered to negotiate with Karzai's government, but he has refused to do so until the U.S. withdraws its troops.

The situation in Afghanistan remains volatile, with violence continuing to plague the country. The U.S. and its allies are working to bring stability to the region, but the path forward is uncertain.

PH seen on the verge of an economic takeoff

By Steve C. Donahue All the elements are in place, says former Neda chief

TEHRAN — Iran's economy is on the verge of a takeoff, says a former head of the National Economic Development and Management Organization (NEDA), the country's top economic planning body. The former NEDA chief, who has been in the U.S. since leaving his post in 2005, says that all the elements are in place for a rapid economic growth. He points to the country's large oil reserves, its growing manufacturing base, and its strategic location as key factors. He also notes that the government has implemented reforms that have improved the business environment and attracted foreign investment. He predicts that Iran's economy will be on a growth path of 10% or more per year in the near future.

'Next Facebook, Google or Apple could come from Asia'

By David S. Lee and David A. Clarke

Some of the most powerful companies in the world may be born in Asia, according to a new report by a leading technology analyst.

The report, by the International Data Corporation (IDC), says that by 2015, Asia will be the largest market for software and services, with a value of $1.1 trillion, up from $800 billion in 2010.

It also says that Asia will be the largest market for hardware, with a value of $1.1 trillion, up from $800 billion in 2010.

The report is based on data from IDC's Global Vantage survey, which tracks the spending of more than 100,000 companies in more than 100 countries.

Profit-seeding universities. Boun or bane?

By David
G. Foray

THE FUTURE
OF THE FUTURE

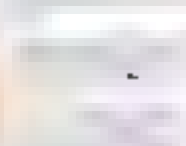

It's a common sight these days: a university professor, often a young one, is seen in a business suit, standing in front of a blackboard, lecturing on the latest in business strategy. The professor is likely to be a member of the university's business school, and the lecture is likely to be a part of a course in business strategy. The professor is likely to be a member of the university's business school, and the lecture is likely to be a part of a course in business strategy.

The business school is a part of the university, and the professor is a member of the business school. The business school is a part of the university, and the professor is a member of the business school. The business school is a part of the university, and the professor is a member of the business school.

Figure 1 illustrates the experimental setup. A participant is seated at a table, looking at a screen. A starting point (a large circle) is marked on the table surface. A target (a small circle) is marked on the screen. The distance between the starting point and the target is labeled 'D'. The distance between the starting point and the screen is labeled 'L'. The distance between the target and the screen is labeled 'D-L'. The participant's hand is positioned at the starting point, and the target is on the screen.

Figure 1: Schematic representation of the experimental design. The diagram shows a sequence of events: a subject is presented with a stimulus (a word or picture), then a response is recorded, and finally, the subject is asked to provide a verbal report. The response and report are then compared to the stimulus. The design is divided into two main sections: 'Stimulus' and 'Response', with a 'Verbal Report' section following. The 'Stimulus' section includes 'Stimulus' and 'Response' labels. The 'Response' section includes 'Response' and 'Verbal Report' labels. The 'Verbal Report' section includes 'Verbal Report' and 'Response' labels. The diagram illustrates the flow of information from the stimulus to the response and then to the verbal report, with a comparison of the response and report to the stimulus.

The following table shows the results of the regression analysis for the dependent variable "Number of children in the household" (N = 1,000). The independent variables are "Age of the head of household" and "Gender of the head of household". The table includes the coefficient estimates, standard errors, t-statistics, and p-values for each variable.

| Variable | Coefficient | Standard Error | t-statistic | p-value |
|--|-------------|----------------|-------------|---------|
| Age of the head of household | 0.001 | 0.000 | 1.2 | 0.23 |
| Gender of the head of household (Male = 1, Female = 0) | -0.05 | 0.02 | -2.5 | 0.01 |
| Constant | 1.5 | 0.1 | 15.0 | 0.00 |

The results indicate that the age of the head of household has a small positive effect on the number of children in the household, while the gender of the head of household has a small negative effect. The constant term is significantly positive.

Experiment summary with FEM

Figure 1 shows a 2D hexagonal lattice of atoms. A central atom is labeled '1'. Its six nearest neighbors are labeled '2'. The next ring of six atoms is labeled '3'. The lattice extends to a larger hexagonal boundary. Labels 'a' and 'b' indicate distances between atoms in different directions. A legend at the bottom right shows a solid circle for 'Atom' and an open circle for 'Vacancy'.

Figure 1 is a line graph illustrating the percentage of the total sample for various age groups over time. The Y-axis represents the percentage of the total sample, ranging from 0 to 100. The X-axis represents the years, from 1980 to 2095 in 5-year increments. The age groups are: 0-14, 15-24, 25-34, 35-44, 45-54, 55-64, 65-74, and 75+. The graph shows a significant shift in the population structure, with the youngest age group (0-14) decreasing from about 25% in 1980 to near 0% by 2050, and the oldest age group (75+) increasing from about 5% in 1980 to about 25% by 2050. The middle age groups (25-34, 35-44, 45-54, 55-64, 65-74) show a general increase in percentage over time, peaking around 2050 before declining.

ECHO Store resonates sustainable businesses practices for micro-entrepreneurs

By Phoebe B. Salazar

PHILIPPINE ECHO Store, a social enterprise, will launch its new store in the heart of Manila, offering micro-entrepreneurs a sustainable business model to grow and sustain their businesses.

Micro-entrepreneurs, who are small business owners, are often struggling to sustain their businesses in a competitive market.

They struggle to keep up with the competition, and many of them are not able to sustain their businesses for a long time.

ECHO Store, however, is a sustainable business model that can help micro-entrepreneurs sustain their businesses for a long time.
